

Plenaire

No science experiments.
Just great skincare.

Hello.

We want to change the way you approach your skincare from the very first moment.

Plenaire

French, derived from the 1840 painting technique “en plein air”; emphasising direct observation of nature over narrative and stylised depiction.

French expression for “in the open air”, having the qualities of natural air and light.

The skincare products that women as young as 13 use were created in the 1970's. Emotional well being is ignored altogether; technology/data are relatively unexploited. Despite 3/4 of younger consumers saying they want alternatives- their needs are not being met.

Plenaire is a direct to consumer beauty brand for young women that demand a more modern, curated approach to skincare.

Plenaire recreates the classic coming of age skincare rituals with a capsule collection of 8 unique products at launch. We want to help young women everywhere take pleasure in their skincare again with our range of clean, sustainably designed products that meet their everyday skincare needs but that also encourage emotional well-being and self-care.

Specifically, how do Plenaire products differ from others?

We follow a cleaner ingredient and formulation approach because we believe in the power of these ingredients to help even the most delicate skin feel and look better.

- Plenaire is 100% ingredient transparent. We avoid raw materials that are considered to be harmful or toxic or to cause any type of skin sensitivity. With ingredients currently being debated as to whether or not they are safe, our approach is to avoid them until more concrete evidence is available.
- All of our products are proudly sourced and made in the UK, a leading hub for ethical cosmetic practices. As a part of this, all our ingredients comply with current European Cosmetic Safety legislation.
- We formulate without SLS/SLES, Parabens, Mineral oil/Petrochemicals, Propylene Glycol, PEGs, PABA, Silicones, GMOs, Aluminium, Microbeads, Formaldehyde, Lead or Mercury. This is not an exhaustive list, but where our ingredient approach mainly differs from competitors.
- We will never test our products or ingredients on animals nor do we use suppliers who test them on our behalf. Our products do not contain animal-based ingredients or animal derivatives. Each Plenaire product has been registered with the Vegan Society.
- All of our fragrances comply with EU and IFRA regulations. These standards form the basis for a globally accepted risk management system for the safe use of fragrance ingredients in cosmetic products. This is a self-regulating system for the industry, based on risk assessments carried out by an independent Expert Panel to ensure that there is no risk for the consumer when using a product.
- Finally, our approach is to constantly review our ingredient list on an ongoing basis and take action as new information becomes available.

BEAUTY AWARDS

5 Brands That Prove Inclusivity Is More Than Just An Extended Foundation Range

BY KATHLEEN BAIRD-MURRAY
11 MAY 2020

As British Vogue's Beauty Awards introduce the first lifetime achievement award for inclusivity, Kathleen Baird-Murray takes a look at five very different brands making the world a more diverse place today.

“Beauty as a path to mental health is very resonant at this time.”

“People don’t really talk about self-harm, perhaps because it’s seen as a middle-class problem or a first-world problem, but that doesn’t mean you can dismiss it.” So says Namrata Nayyar-Kamdar, the founder of Plenaire, a skincare line for teenagers which aims to give a more positive experience of beauty than just selling products to deal with acne. “This is a rite of passage, and buying your first cleanser should be as pleasurable as buying your first bra,” she says.

A firm believer that mental health is intrinsically linked to skincare, the former Unilever executive, who has experienced a mental health crisis herself, noticed that the language used by brands to target youth was also outdated. “Our children are maturing in a tough political climate, and are under tremendous pressure to succeed from a young age,” she says. Plenaire embeds positive messages within its products and packaging, showing diverse faces, people with disabilities and others in highly vulnerable positions. “People don’t always look glossy, they’re not always perfect, and they’re not necessarily making tons of money.”

The coronavirus pandemic has hit small businesses hard, from hair salons to the new beauty brands on the block. So, it makes sense that if you want to treat yourself to a new beauty buy but you don't have anything specific in mind, why not support the small British beauty businesses with your hard-earned cash? Because there is truth in that saying you often see on Instagram feeds or chalked onto A-boards outside small shops: "When you buy from a small business, an actual person does a happy little dance."
